

Prevention Services

Brittany Morgan, Prevention Clinician

Prevention services are designed to inform, educate, demonstrate skills, and reduce risk behaviors in students. Prevention is not clinical counseling or therapy. These services can include short-term individual or group skill-building sessions to help a student with a particular concern, professional consultation and professional development on social, behavioral, or mental health concerns, as well as effective strategies teachers can use in their classroom to help students successfully manage these concerns, suicide/self-harm risk assessments, and helping families link with community-based counseling services. All referrals for prevention services must be made by the school counselor or a school administrator.

Support for students with 504 Plans

Kimberly Hendry, 504 Coordinator

The 504 Coordinator will consult with the School Counselor and coordinate service options for students with an identified disability who are being served through a 504 Plan. The 504 Coordinator may work with students individually or in a group setting, provide consultation to staff, serve as a liaison between school and outside clinical supports as well as provide crisis intervention services.
