

Prevention Services

Brittany Morgan, Prevention Clinician

Prevention services provide short-term, skill-building support. They are not counseling services. Prevention services are designed to inform, educate, demonstrate skills and reduce at-risk behavior in students. Services include skill building lessons with students, consultation and professional development for teachers on effective strategies for managing social, behavioral or mental health concerns in the classroom as well as educating stakeholders about these concerns. Crisis intervention, linking families with clinical practitioners, and consultation are also part of the prevention services available. All referrals for prevention services must be made by the school counselor or a school administrator.

Support for students with 504 Plans

Kimberly Hendry, 504 Coordinator

The 504 Coordinator will consult with the School Counselor and coordinate service options for students with an identified disability who are being served through a 504 Plan. The 504 Coordinator may work with students individually or in a group setting, provide consultation to staff, serve as a liaison between school and outside clinical supports as well as providing crisis intervention services.

SO WHERE DO YOU START?

If you have concerns about a student's well-being the best place to start an inquiry about school based supports is by contacting our School Counselor, Kelley Schubert, or one of our Principals.
